Hill racing 2 game

A tight grip and sweat glistening on your forehead, you keep your focus on the road. Careening on the asphalt at over 300 km/h, you are approaching a bend, one that will surely hit you with some G's if you perform a precision drift. A miscalculated step on the brakes and you suddenly hit the railings, the car cracking in a pile of rubber and steel. Of course, you'd probably be in the hospital right now if you didn't play a racing sim. That's how exciting some of these Android games are. While you're not that sudden rush of adrenaline from an actual performance racing vehicle, hardware for Android phones and tablets these days are now capable enough in giving realistic racing scenarios for the bank racer in you. Prepare your processors, and rev up your RAM cause here come the apps that will supercharge your engines and give you the diesel-fueled fix you need. Note: Many of these games are both demanding in terms of the devices they can run on and the upfront cost to own them. If you have the money and a higher end device, you won't have a problem grabbing the titles below. Otherwise, check the market description and test them first to see if the game works for you.1. Asphalt 6: Adrenaline HD ($6.99)Asphalt 6 is the best racing game on the market, in my opinion. Advance your racing career by winning races and challenges and be rewarded with real cars like Lamborghini's and Ferraris and better tuning kits. Plus, you can even drift while racing and take out your opponents to make sure they feel the pain.2. NEED FOR SPEED™ Shift ($2.99)This racing classic is finally mobile, giving you some of the best tracks to get your tires burning. If you want to know what it feels like to race against killer opponents and let nitro flow through your veins, this is a game you really need to get.3. Raging Thunder 2 ($4.99, lite version available)This is not your regular street race. Streak through temples, beaches and even the Great Wall while making sure your opponents don't reach the finish line in one piece. Plus, you can take on your friends through online multiplayer.4. Asphalt HD ($4.99, free version available)Want some adrenaline, but your phone can't handle Asphalt 6? No problem, Asphalt HD is here. Built for lower end phones, it's the same road burn title tweaked to run better on lower processors. Despite that, it's still as engaging and goes head to head versus Adrenaline as the best looking racing game on the market.5. Extreme Formula (free) I prefer to drive real cars myself, but this futuristic take on the usual racing game is a bit refreshing. Use advanced fuel sources, high-tech tuning systems and advanced vehicles to advance your racing career. It has a smooth manoeuvring system and one-touch drift making it easy to get from the difficult to master, but hard to control. Best of all, it's free.6. GT Racing: Motor Academy Free+ (free)If you want to race but don't have the money to do Right now, you might want to try GT Racing. Prove yourself by completing the game without help or just get a little extra boost with in-app money purchases to level your vehicle and advance your career faster. Make sure you have a fast connection too, because it needs a hefty download at the beginning to set everything up.7. Drift Mania Championship ($1.02)You have to give props to special devs. Did you know that this app was developed in collaboration with a professional drifting association? And yes, I know it's not necessarily a racing game, but who can't resist drifting some smoothly on a specially made track, chaining combos with every successful drift? Stay focused and in control while burning rubber and who knows, you might even win the DMCC cup.8. Wave Blazer ($2.99, lite version available)Who says racing has to involve cars right? With Wave Blazer you tear through the average waterways of the world with a 4000 HP speedboat below you. Fight the AI or challenge a live breathing human on the other side via online multiplayer. It's a challenge to check your fast watercraft, to say the least, but one thing I love about this game: great air time at almost every angle.9. Riptide GP ($6.99)More water racing action here, courtesy of Riptide. Keep your cool as you plow a wake down the track with your fast jet ski, beating opponents with torrential speed and awesome stunts. Best played on Tegra devices, it has all the physics you need from water movement to real reflections. It probably has one of the best graphics of a game found on the Android platform, but it lacks a little challenge, with only 4 tracks.10. Speed Forge 3D ($2.90, demo version available)Another game with very smooth 3D graphics, Speed Forge impresses with its renders, but not so much on gameplay. Nevertheless, the Podracer feel and physics of the game lets you fly through tight corners and roar about right away. It even has vibration feedback so you really feel it when you see the angles.11. TurboFly 3D ($1.99, demo version available)This is for the racer of the future and the vehicles here actually deal with more like fighter jets especially when they start flying off cliffs. Extremely fluid graphics and online play are two things that keep you playing this game. With so many options to choose from, we've compiled a list that includes a whole range of subgenres - from stylized arcade races to highly realistic race sims - so whatever your preference, you'll need to find an excellent game that suits you. And And If you want great games in other genres, we also have our list of favorite Android games in general. Ready? Let's get on the road! GRID Autosport brings console-quality racing to Android without compromises in terms of graphics or gameplay. The game offers some of the best rendered graphics and textures I've seen from a mobile game. The physics engine is dynamic and you'll see real-time damage to your vehicle as you swap paint with opponents in the corners. There are over 100 cars to drive and an equal number of tracks to race across a wide range of disciplines – from open-wheel and touring circuits to street drag races and more arcade-style demolition races. GRID Autosport also lets you choose how you want to race with scalable difficulty making a simpler and more arcade-style experience for casual gamers or stepped-up difficulty for fans craving a pure racing simulation. Although the game offers nice flexibility for touchscreen controls, you want to take advantage of the support for Bluetooth controller. It's just better with a physical controller, and if you need to find one for mobile gaming, we've got you covered. It's a pity there's a lack of support for the NVIDIA Shield TV because it should be perfectly suited for running a game like GRID, but they are the breaks. GRID Autosport is a premium game, but worth the money if you're looking for the best racing action on Android. GRID Autosport is a full-featured racing game for Android that features a huge grid of cars to choose from and a ton of tracks and circuits to burn rubber down. Choose from more traditional racing modes, take to the streets in drag or drift races or beat them in a demolition derby. Nintendo making Mario Kart Tour free-to-play is as much a blessing as a curse – it means millions of people can jump in and play without paying a dime, but it also means that the game is carefully designed to entice you to subscribe to a monthly Gold Pass and spend on in-app currency to unlock more characters and rewards at a faster pace. The gameplay itself is as hectic and chaotic as you'd expect from a Mario Kart game, and it's easily the most fun I've had with a mobile racing game in some time. In most aspects, this looks and feels like a real Mario Kart experience complete with item boxes and coins scattered throughout each course, fun shortcuts to discover, and that familiar thrill of victory and the more familiar sting of defeat. This is, however, despite the oversimplified controls, invisible bumper rails preventing you from going off course, and other bizarre restrictions that Nintendo has imposed. In many ways, the only new aspect of Mario Kart Tour is that it is available to play on smartphones. There are fewer courses and characters available and to free to play, it probably takes more money than is needed to simply buy the latest Mario Kart game for the Nintendo Switch. But again, you don't have to spend money to enjoy any Mario Kart Tour – until you start getting matched against those players who have spent gobs of it to upgrade their drivers and karts, of course. With Mario Kart Tour, you can play some of your favorite tracks, along with some new ones, right from your phone. There are plenty of characters, karts and items to unlock. Take on others from all over the world to see how well you match up! Asphalt 9. Legends is the latest entry in one of the most popular racing titles games available in the Google Play Store. It skips all pretensions of realism and offers an over-the-top, high-octane experience with all the affirmations. Players can work (or pay) their way through career mode to unlock new rides or upgrade the ones they have. You race against online opponents in eight-car races that are wild and fast. The controls come standard on TouchDrive, which allows you to focus on shifting lanes to hit specific jumps or routes, using drifts and nitro while the game itself processes your acceleration and steering. Other controls are available, including on-screen controls and tilt controls, but frankly it's best to get started with TouchDrive until you get a grip on the game. The incredibly polished graphics and excellent soundtrack make Asphalt 9 an adrenaline rush you won't soon forget. Download Asphalt 9: Legends (Free w/IAPs) Asphalt is one of the best high-octane mobile racing franchises with over 50 of the world's best racing cars. There's a full career mode to enjoy with wild arcade-style racing action. Riptide GP: Renegade is the latest and greatest in futuristic jet ski racing franchise on Android. Riptide GP: Renegade, which goes back to memories of games like Jet Moto or Wave Race 64, has a story-driven career mode alongside options to drive a fast race or compete against online opponents. The graphics are top-notch, with water and motion blur effects, giving the game a good sense of speed. It uses tilt steering to control your hydrojet, which is less than ideal, but Bluetooth gamepads are also supported and make it smoother. Speaking of controls, an important aspect of the game is pulling insane stunts, which are easy to do with quick swipes. There's plenty to unlock and upgrade as you play through career mode, and the AI is top notch, which offers a real challenge compared to other racing games for Android. You'll need a pretty good phone to handle the graphics and gameplay, and also play beautifully on the NVIDIA Shield Android TV box. If you're looking for some tips before you dive in, check out our Beginner's Guide to Riptide GP: Renegade. Who's ready to get a little wet? Riptide GP: Renegade is a stylish wave which is still one of the best looking racing games on Android. This game stands out from other racing games with the way it combines high-speed car chases with the best elements from the endless runner genre. Immediately, you will be attracted by the great art style that Procedurally generated maps to plot the curbside attractions and cities you must pass on your outlaw tour. You'll need to become an experienced driver to collect all the bottle caps as you go, which are spent unlocking your choice of 29 unique cool vehicles. Filling in the atmosphere is your anonymous sidekick, who reminds you every time you pass a gas station and comment on each near miss. Although endless runners are often casual games, the touch controls require your full attention with fast inputs used to drive your car through tight spots. Each car you unlock has its own speeds and handling, but you control them all as you unlock them and race across the three terrains - deserts, snow and jungle - each with five cities to tour through. The free version you download from the Play Store includes ads that you view to extend a run - or pay you a one-time in-app purchase to remove ads and get permanent in-game bonuses. This is an endless racing game where you are on the run in multiple provinces. All you have to do is keep your car refueled and avoid crashing while outrunning the police - easier said than done! Horizon Chase is a fun retro-style racer with gameplay reminiscent of the classic 80s arcade racer Pole Position. With bright and colorful retro graphics and over 70 tracks spread across 32 cities, there's plenty of fun to be had here. You start each race from the back of a 20 car pack and you have to weave your way past your opponents to take the crown. Keep winning to upgrade and unlock 16 available cars. You get to play the San Francisco tracks, but then have to pay to unlock the full game. Considering how beautiful and fun this game is, we bet you will. Horizon Chase is an ode to the arcade classics of the past, from Pole Position to Outrun to Cruis'n USA. The soundtrack is just amazing and everything makes me feel like dropping a kid again in quarters or booting up my N64. Race through bright and colorful locations in Horizon Chase, a throwback racer that delivers fun arcade action with a ton to do, lots of cars and cosmetics to unlock, and some great gameplay to enjoy. Dirt Trackin 2 is the perfect game for you! With charming graphics and a simple premise, your goal is to drift sideways through four increasingly challenging courses. With over 100 cars to buy through in-app purchases, or unlock randomly using coins collected on the job or through special tricks, there are hours of mindless fun to be had here. Thumb Drift is the casual, endless racer you've been waiting for. It's not exactly the most engaging or endearing racing game on this list, especially with how in-your-face the IAPs are, but sometimes a little mindless fun is worth the There's not much else about ThumbDrift. Give it a shot if it sounds like something you would enjoy. With simple, one-inch controls, Thumb Drift is a casual endless racing game that features over 100 cars to unlock and drift through six unique tracks. Real Racing 3 is a mobile race game that is bound to keep hardcore gearheads entertained. It puts real brand name cars on real-world tracks - hence the name - and features an interesting asynchronous multiplayer system that includes lap times from your friends, and you race against a bot that is driving at that time. Of course you can knock them out and affect their track time, and there's a single-player career that's worth playing through. Over time, players earn new cars and can upgrade different mechanical bits with their winnings, but make sure you take it easy on your car – you need to keep your ride in good condition to avoid repair costs. This is an EA game, you expect the usual amount of microtransactions to be offered, including three different in-game currencies with different things to achieve. It's a typical EA move and sours an otherwise fun racing game for me personally. Real Racing 3 is beautiful, and the white knuckle racing action will keep you coming back for more. CSR Racing is a clean-cut drag racing game. Players don't have to worry about steering – all you have to do is perfect time changing your gear. Indicators tell you when to make your next shift, and assuming your timing is up to snuff and your ride is amply upgraded, you should pull over the finish line for your opponent, and earn some wins. Premium currency can be used to buy high-end cars, while the standard currency can be used to buy the others, as well as upgrade specific parts such as gearbox, engine, inlet, and body. There are a few other racing games in this franchise, including CSR Racing 2 and Csr Classics, but the former is still the best in our books. CSR Racing comes down to drag racing to pure twitch reflexes. With over 100 licensed cars all of which can be upgraded and customized, how far will you make it on the World Tour? Top Speed was a very popular racing game back in its time, but the sequel takes things up a notch. It comes standard with multiplayer, more than 70 cars to unlock, many customization and racing options and much more. It's a racing game that packs a lot of what you'd expect, with the only downside being the freemium model. You play as a disgraced cop who gets into drag racing with the mafia. Sounds pretty weird, but the story takes second place alongside the high octane race action. You have a ton of cars to choose from if you have a name for yourself and work to become the best driver in town. Top Speed 2 offers some good customization vehicles, but it's not without its faults. There are plenty of in-app purchases to be found here. You will be asked to spend money on refueling (the stamina meter), lootboxes for car parts, and upgrades for your cars. It all feels pretty slimy, but it itself is fun enough. The sequel to the popular Top Speed brings out all the things you loved about the first game, just get better. Drive over 70 cars, customize, and prove yourself the best racer around. What if, instead of being the racer, you to lead the racers? Well, Motorsport Manager Mobile 3 does just that. You build your own racing team from scratch and compete in international events to become the best. You drive everything from hiring the drivers to upgrading the cars. Strategy is the name of the game here, with you even working to have the most efficient pit stop. You have to be prepared for anything, including weather changes and crashes. It's really quite the robust game, which means you have to see the whole picture of what's going on in a particular race. With the challenge constantly evolving to meet your increasing skills, Motorsport Manager Mobile 3 (what a mouthful) promises less high octane action than some of the other games on this list, instead offering an excellent experience that makes you eager to manage a racing team. Get out of the driver's seat and put on your manager's hat, it's time to build an entire racing team. Control every aspect, up to training and upgrades. Source: Google Play Store Grand Prix Story is a different race sim, but very different in function and form of Motorsport Manager Mobile 3. This pixel art adventure is cuter and more fun - much less serious than MMM3. You're still responsible for a racing team instead of being a single driver, but some of you would prefer that. If so, read on. Realism is not important here; it's about having a fun time with a great art style. Since you are the manager, it is up to you to recruit and train directors, build sponsorship deals, and ensure that your team wins as much as possible. Build new cars and parts to make sure you succeed. Grand Prix Story is a one-time purchase without ads or microtransactions. It's just a healthy, quirky and fun experience that puts you in the manager's chair. Another race sim, Grand Prix Story takes a more whimsical and less realistic approach. Enjoy the cute art style as you lead a team to the ultimate victory! Another incredibly fun game that is 100% free without nonsense. Data Wing is a racing adventure through pure neon style. The visual styling is strikingly secure and I love every minute I've spent with Data Wing. The touch controls are absolutely on point and incredibly sharp, the levels look great, and it has a good skill ceiling. There's a nice story behind Data Wing, a bit like the original Tron in some ways. You'll probably finish it pretty quickly, but it's really nice to go back and do it all over again. There is a high replay value here. That soundtrack is pretty awesome, too. I love everything about Data Wing and it misses the cons and caveats I usually note. This is free without ads or IAPs to be had. Another excellent Data Wing is a wonderful racing adventure that takes clear signals from Tron's neonscape. It's a brilliant game and worth playing. Beach Buggy Racing 2 is a bit like classic Mario Kart or Diddy Kong Racing (who remembers that??). It is a cart racer with power-ups and intense competition by wacky environment as if Race to the top. But there's a little more content here to enjoy and work towards than the classic style of the game. Not only do you collect cars and drivers – and there's a lot there, for sure – but you level your power-ups, which are plenty to choose from. There are many game modes, including an online competitive multiplayer, and so you have more than enough to do. Beach Buggy Racing 2 is a fun racing experience and very evocative for the classics I mentioned above. Although it's free-to-play, it's not super invasive with the monetization and because the game is so much fun, I don't feel bad about supporting the developer. You just pay to speed up the progress in the game. Beach Buggy Racing 2 brings you back to the good ol' days of console cart racing games. It's cute, it's fun, and it's just a great time all around. It's hard to believe I'd never heard of Nitro Nation Drag & Shift, especially given its ridiculous name, since it's apparently very popular. So I decided to give it a try and knew almost immediately that it was necessary to be here in this list, and this comes from someone who usually doesn't like racing games. Because, despite some in-app purchases, Nitro Nation, as it will henceforth be called, deviates from the usual freemium pitfalls we see with these types of games (some of which are in this list, go figure). It's just a fair to goodness racing game full of drag racing goodness, with IAF's for high-profile cars and in-game currency. There is an absolute ton to do in Nitro Nation, lots of cars to aim for, tuning, cosmetics to unlock, and just a lot. It's almost overwhelming. And without the usual nonsense of engine systems, waiting times for upgrades, or anything like that, you focus on enjoying the experience the game has to offer. I think you're going to really like this one. Despite an awkwardly long name, Nitro Nation Drag & Shift is just a good drag racing game with a ton to do, lots of cars and cosmetics to unlock, and some great gameplay to enjoy. Dirt Trackin 2 is the sequel to the excellent Dirt Trackin (of course). It may not quite be the looker like some of the other games on this list, but it has a solid gameplay base, some variety, and races versus AI and other players. Plus, it has simple but tight controls, which is all you ask in a racing game. There's plenty of customization, five car models to choose from, a career mode and PvP. You'll also have time trials and a number of other modes to play. This is a fun game to play to kill some time. Dirt Trackin 2 is a fun racing game with lots of customization and plenty to do. It may not look the best, but it has a solid foundation. A free-to-play, freemium game like others here, Hill Climb Racing 2 still presents a fun Racing. It has lots of vehicles to unlock, upgrades to buy, customization for both vehicles and characters, and a few different game modes (such as offline Adventure and Arcade). As you might have by name, the game is all about climbing and descending hills as you race others. It's a simple game, but very fun. I suggest checking it out if you want to find more erratic racing games because you don't have much realism here. Hill Climb Racing 2 challenges you to beat everyone up and down the hills. There are several vehicles to unlock, upgrades to buy, and customization to be had. Update December 2020: Dirt Trackin 2 and Hill Climb Racing 2 added to our list! We can earn a commission for purchases through our links. Learn more. More.
